

The Millionaire's Mansion has had a spate of burglaries over the past year and once again, at a recent dinner there, Lord Clarence and Lady Constance played host and hostess to three imposters at one sitting! They thought that they was entertaining respected personages named Jeeves, Deans and Jones, but in fact it was Larry the Thief, Babyface Hannah and Burglar Bill who sat down at the table. Posing as a famous poet, a veterinary expert and a secretary sent by a London agency, this trio of phony balonies dined in high fashion at the "Princeton" table. They had infiltrated The Millionaire's Mansion for a number of nefarious motives: one was skulking around hoping to find the Gold candelabrum, one hoped to steal away the family jewels, and one was there just for fun. From this information and the following clues, for each imposter, can you determine who adopted which alias to pose, in what role, and for what ulterior motive?

1. Burglar Bill who was not "Jeeves" sat across the table from "Deans", who sat next to the person posing as the Secretary who was not Babyface Hannah
2. The "Poet" was not after the family jewels and definitely not for fun.
3. Larry the Thief sat right beside the imposter who was after Gold candelabrum, who sat directly across from "Jones", who was not after the Gold candelabrum
4. Babyface Hannah sat next to the "Jeeves" who was there just for fun.

		Name			Role			Motive
		Deans	Jones	Jeeves	Secretary	Veterinary	Poet	Fun	Jewels	Candelabra
Alias	Burglar Bill
	Babyface Hann
	Larry the Thi
Motive	Fun
	Jewels
	Candelabra
Role	Secretary
	Veterinary
	Poet

	Name	Role	Motive
Burglar Bill
Babyface Hann
Larry the Thi

Play This Logic Puzzle
ahapuzzles.com/x/lp/80

The Millionaire's Mansion has had a spate of burglaries over the past year and once again, at a recent dinner there, Lord Clarence and Lady Constance played host and hostess to three imposters at one sitting! They thought that they was entertaining respected personages named Jeeves, Deans and Jones, but in fact it was Larry the Thief, Babyface Hannah and Burglar Bill who sat down at the table. Posing as a famous poet, a veterinary expert and a secretary sent by a London agency, this trio of phony balonies dined in high fashion at the "Princeton" table. They had infiltrated The Millionaire's Mansion for a number of nefarious motives: one was skulking around hoping to find the Gold candelabrum, one hoped to steal away the family jewels, and one was there just for fun. From this information and the following clues, for each imposter, can you determine who adopted which alias to pose, in what role, and for what ulterior motive?

- Burglar Bill who was not "Jeeves" sat across the table from "Deans", who sat next to the person posing as the Secretary who was not Babyface Hannah
- The "Poet" was not after the family jewels and definitely not for fun.
- Larry the Thief sat right beside the imposter who was after Gold candelabrum, who sat directly across from "Jones", who was not after the Gold candelabrum
- Babyface Hannah sat next to the "Jeeves" who was there just for fun.

		Name			Role			Motive
		Deans	Jones	Jeeves	Secretary	Veterinary	Poet	Fun	Jewels	Candelabra
Alias	Burglar Bill	✗	✓	✗	✗	✓	✗	✗	✓	✗
	Babyface Hann	✓	✗	✗	✗	✗	✓	✗	✗	✓
	Larry the Thi	✗	✗	✓	✓	✗	✗	✓	✗	✗
Motive	Fun	✗	✗	✓	✓	✗	✗
	Jewels	✗	✓	✗	✗	✓	✗
	Candelabra	✓	✗	✗	✗	✗	✓
Role	Secretary	✗	✗	✓
	Veterinary	✗	✓	✗
	Poet	✓	✗	✗

	Name	Role	Motive
Burglar Bill	Jones	Veterinary	Jewels
Babyface Hann	Deans	Poet	Candelabra
Larry the Thi	Jeeves	Secretary	Fun

