

The Football Game - Logic Puzzle

International players of equal fame played their sport in a round-ball game. Football, soccer, call it what you may, that is the game these men liked to play. Each capped many times, least 54, really only one in a spot to score. From this information and the following clues, for each player, can you determine his playing position, the number of times he was capped and the number of times he captained his international team?

1. The goalkeeper received most caps.
2. The least capped player never captained his team.
3. Billy was capped nearly twice as much as Stanley.
4. 90 captaincies were bestowed on the centre half.
