

The Music Man - Logic Puzzle

"I am the music man, I come from down your way, and I can play." "What can you play?" "I can play the piano, piano, piano. I can play the piano. That's what I can play." "I am the music man, I come from down your way, and I can play." "What can you play?" "I can play the saxophone, saxophone, saxophone. I can play the saxophone. That's what I can play." "I am the music man, I come from down your way, and I can play." "What can you play?" "I can play the violin, violin, violin. I can play the violin. That's what I can play."

The music man asked for requests. Jenny made the first and the music man chose an instrument, followed by Mary, and the music man chose an instrument and then Sarah, who requested "Fur Elise" and the music man chose an instrument. And so the music man played. The music man chose a different instrument on which to play each request but he didn't necessarily play them in the order chosen. From this information and the following clues, for each girl, can you determine the tune chosen, the instrument selected by the music man on which to play it and the order in which it was played?

1. When she made her request, Sarah knew on which instrument it would be played.
2. The music man gave a rousing rendition of Jenny's request.
3. Mary's request was given a more tranquil rendition and was not played last.
4. The music man played the saxophone second.
